

Author – Thought Leader – Career Coach – Corporate Executive

KEITH R. WYCHE

"I reveal insights from inside the executive suite to help minority professionals see themselves through the same lens from which they are viewed by executive decision makers." Out of all business executives in the U.S., approximately 23% are women, 8% are Hispanic or Latino, 4% are Asian and 3% are African American. Minorities in corporate America have made great strides in advancing to management positions. BUT, minority representation at the executive level is still considerably low.

Along his journey from success to significance, and at the pinnacle of this corporate career, Keith Wyche – President of Cub Foods a SUPERVALU Company and one of corporate America's highest ranking African American executives – is now sharing the secrets to breaking from middle management to senior leadership.

The twist: Wyche's message is not about what corporate America isn't doing. It's about what today's minority professional can do to succeed.

And, after more than 30 years in some of corporate America's most successful companies – including Pitney Bowes, Ameritech, Convergys Corporation, AT&T and IBM – Wyche has the practical experience, scars and successes to back up his words.

KEITH WYCHE is a dynamic speaker with an engaging, humorous style. His keynotes are filled with no nonsense advice and practical examples for everyday application. Audiences walk away informed, inspired and motivated. Always the coach, Wyche uses a question and answer technique to help his listeners address career impacting challenges with practical direction. But, more importantly, they walk away with an executable plan to help them take their career to the next level.

*The bottom-line according to Wyche,
"GOOD IS NOT ENOUGH!"*
